Literacy in Vision kicks off fundraiser at Commonwealth Restaurant to support Literacy Project Foundation

Newport Beach, CA—Saghi Maleki and Jesse Valencia co-chaired the recent inaugural “friendraiser” for Literacy in Vision (LIV) at Commonwealth Restaurant in Newport Beach. Some 50 guests turned out to help raise awareness for LPF’s Get Set Read literacy programs that are servicing schools throughout Southern California. Commonwealth Restaurant owner Dave George was on hand to greet guests and provide hors d’oeuvres in the upstairs lounge. The friendraiser is the kick off of the guild that will stage lively events throughout the year. LIV was created as a philanthropic arm of the Literacy Project Foundation to bring together colleagues who share an interest in bringing the gift of literacy to underprivileged and struggling readers. Guests included Dan Walters, Renee Valencia, Alan Freeman, LPF President Sue Tucker, volunteers Danielle Drucker and Jessica Cunningham, Travis Cannon and sister Crystal, Chad Latham, Sara Garske, Bronson Tachele, Jeannie, Richard, and Brett Lawrence, Dan Korpman, Romteen Youssefi, Casey Arisohn, and Cara Hess among others.
